Underline dress-ups in a sentence – one of each type required

	Likely, most students who are somewhat computer savvy, will be able to use the Table function in Word. Before you begin to work on your homework for this course, please create a table with three columns and one row. As shown in this table, both the right hand column and the left hand column are narrower than the middle column. Your written work will be typed in the middle column because it is obviously wider. Dress-ups will be underlined. The Sentence Opener indicators are shown in the l/h column while the structural elements are displayed in the r/h column. Following these instructions on creating the Table, students will create a uniform and easy to read presentation
