

Gloating and Gallivanting
1	The misty morning fog was just beginning to lift as a fox quietly crept out of the woods. With his nose lifted high, he sniffed. The breeze wafted a most delicious smell over his head. Curiously he crept further into the meadow. High up above, an ordinary crow perched on a gnarled branch of the old oak tree. In her beak was an enormous chunk of golden cheese.	when, who where
2		who
3		problem say, do think Climax solution lesson epilogue, title

WEBSTER'S ACADEMY FOR EXCELLENCE IN WRITING

Example of formatting a story to reveal structure of the story sequence outline.